

Ramsay Wharton
Program Manager, Arizona Film & Digital Media Program

Ramsay Wharton is the Program Manager for the Arizona Commerce Authority's Film & Digital Media Program. A veteran of the entertainment industry, she served the people of Hawaii for nearly 20 years as a broadcast television and radio journalist. Most recently, Ramsay was the Early Edition Anchor and Live Reporter for Hawaii's CBS/NBC Emmy Award-winning morning news show, "Sunrise on Hawaii News Now." She understands the dynamics of the film and creative industries and has had speaking and background roles on CBS' "Hawaii Five-0" and "Lost."

Ramsay understands the world of media, communications, and business. Ramsay is a small business owner herself, the founding partner of the production company, Blue Wave Media Hawaii, LLC, which launched HawaiiOnTheMove.com, Hawaii's Premiere Online Video Travel Magazine. She also operates Ramsay Wharton Productions, LLC which focuses on voice-over, publishing, and podcasting productions.

Ramsay received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science from Stetson University in DeLand, Florida, and a Master of Arts degree in Broadcast Journalism & Public Affairs from American University in Washington, D.C.

When Ramsay moved to Arizona in December 2016 she brought with her a wealth of knowledge and a passion to grow the creative industries in the Grand Canyon State. She believes the captivating beauty of Arizona's desert with diverse locations and climates is equally as alluring as the beauty of her former home in the islands.
